Meet Ben. He is a very responsible worker. He dreams about a salary raise, a job promotion, respect from his boss and a vacation.

Ben doesn't have all this because his daily morning looks like this:

he brushes his teeth
misses his morning train
comes to his office late and gets scolded by his boss.

One day his friend showed him the "Punctual Me" app.

Ben has started using this app. Every morning he opens the app and chooses his destination by clicking on pre-saved pins or simply swiping down. Then he chooses the time by clicking and swiping the clock in a clockwise motion. Next he chooses a route and confirms his decision. He puts his phone in his pocket and goes his destination. He gets an alert when he needs hurry up, which makes him go faster, and he arrives on time.

When he needs to catch a taxi or a bus Ben simply switches from walking mode to public transportation mode and checks the closest route. Also he can see when the next bus or train will come and how long he needs to take it.

Punctual Me has become Ben's new best friend because the app helps him with his commute. The app remembers Ben's daily schedule and suggests times when he should leave to catch his bus or train. Ben gets an alert 30 minutes before the ap, it's exactly how long he needs to get the station. He clicks ok and gets to the app with filled information, so he needs only to confirm his decision to start walk.

Ben became more punctual, because he sets his commuting goals daily in the app, manages and analyses them. Now Ben catches his morning train,he gets to office on time, he gets morning greetings from his boss and he got a promotion. That's how punctual me will come your dreams true. And by the way Ben is planning his vacation to Hawaii now.
